Comic Books in the New World Order

By Alex G. Malloy

The comic market saw a very volatile year in 2002—the economic slump along with the slowdown of the stock market should have precipitated a similar slowdown in comics, but—interestingly enough—just the opposite has occurred. This particular trend has been true only for Golden Age and high-end Silver Age comics. Three specific factors have contributed to this unique (and long-awaited) phenomenon.

Factor one is the Comics Guaranty, LLC (CGC) grading of comics. CGC has now become accepted and trusted as the premier grading tool in the industry. Each and every comic that has been submitted to the company's top-flight staff of grading experts can be purchased with confidence as to grading with no questions asked so long as it remains in the company-sealed CGC holder. This factor alone brings a strong new confidence in the buying and selling process, especially of Golden Age comics.

For anyone who has not yet availed themselves of their services, CGC is a comic grading company. The company grades comics, checking restoration and after the grading the comic is put in a specialized holder with a certified grading guide. It has made selling older comics a free and trusted way to sell. No longer is a buyer stung by buying an over-graded comic. Their Web site can be found at www.CGCcomics.com. Check it out, and let them know that CVA sent you over.

Factor two has been the great drop in the stock market, which—while it has hurt investors in that marketplace—has resulted in a rush of new investment dollars back into our little industry that has spurred serious investments into the Golden Age market.

Factor three is the finding of a new cache of Golden Age comics being offered (including file copies from both the vaults of Stan Lee, Marvel comics, and EC comic-books). This has resulted in the great advance in Golden Age comics values resulting in more and more fine Golden Age comics being offered for sale, fanning the hot prices ever upward.

While all three of the above indicators helped in the revival of prices of well-preserved Golden and Silver Age comics, there were yet a couple of other indicators that helped the revival of interest in the current crop of comics. One of these has been the revitalization of the genre itself. In no particular order, Marvel's new Ultimate Universe offers up a re-energized, 21st century spin on many of their top-tier heroes and titles which has certainly served to kick-start the entire line-up. While over at DC they have been involved in their own mini-revival, as are both Image and Dark Horse (both touting new line-ups and titles which include—gasp!— superheroes). Then, of course, there is CrossGen, which has been growing by leaps and bounds with new titles and creators. Plus, there is their recent (as of this writing) acquisition of Chaos!'s Lady Death (Chaos, of course, met with its own unfortunate demise, went Chapter 11, and proved to be one of the few dark clouds hovering over the comicscape).

Still, one of the biggest shots in the arm to the industry has simply got to be the humongous success of Spider-Man the Movie. Released last May, it not only had a record-breaking opening weekend of $114,844,000 off 3,615 screens, it went on to top $400 million, becoming, arguably, not only one of the biggest blockbusters of all times, but the fastest one out of the gate to hit all of these monster milestones. Then there's the sales of the DVD (issued in December) which also went right through the roof. Needless to say, both the release of the movie and the DVD (plus all of the accompanying marketing and hoopla events) have made our features editor Robert J. Sodaro the happiest Spider-Fan on the Earth, and caused him to go right around the twist. According to his family, he had himself a very Spidery-Christmas (we hear that Santa brought him several Spider-presents—including the Special Edition of the Spider-Man DVD, and a DVD player on which to view it). Still, rumor has it that Bob is now considering purchasing a larger TV and a DVD-drive for his computer so he can better reach Spider-Nirvana). All of this, not to mention tickets for the Spider-Man stunt spectacular show at Radio City Music Hall in NYC! (What's next Bob, a vacation at Florida's Universal Marvel Super Hero Island?)

Still, for the rest of us here on planet real-life, while we certainly enjoyed the Spider-flick (along with Aerosmith's rendition of Spidey's theme), we are all looking forward to the coming year which contains not only Daredevil (with Ben Affleck, Jennifer Garner, Michael Clarke Duncan, Colin Farrell, Joe Pantoliano, et. al.), Hulk (directed by Ang Lee, and staring Eric Bana, Jennifer Connelly, Sam Elliott, and Nick Nolte), as well as the X-Men sequel (Patrick Stewart, Hugh Jackman, Ian McKellen, Halle Berry, Famke Janssen, James Marsden, and Rebecca Romijn-Stamos), but the strong possibility of Superman and/or Batman movies as well. Yes boys and girls, this has all the earmarks of a great year for comic-book fans.

Once again I would like to thank not only our cast and crew over at Krause Publications for helping us get this book to market, but both my fine editors Bob Sodaro and Stuart Wells for their contributions, to Jerry Ordway for consenting to an interview and for the loan of art to illustrate it. To Mike Raub and our friends over at Flamingo St. Books in Norwalk, CT for their input and help. And we'll see you all back here next year for our look back and forward.

Across the Boards with Jerry Ordway

By Robert J. Sodaro

Born November 28, 1957, Jerry Ordway is best known for his long-running association with DC as penciler, inker, co-plotter, and writer of numerous series, including several Superman titles (including Action, Superman, and Adventures of Superman*),* Justice League of America, Batman, Crisis on Infinite Earths, and, of course, Shazam. Plus he is also the co-creator of Infinity Inc. Still it is the lead role he played in the Death of Superman and Funeral for a Friend series that stand out the most.

Still, while we may best remember him from DC, he also worked at First Comics on GrimJack, at Marvel he worked on the Fantastic Four, What The…?, Avengers, and Marvel Fanfare, and for Deluxe Comics he worked on Wally Wood's THUNDER Agents (a role it is rumored that he is slated to repeat, or already has by the time this sees print over at DC, where the Agents are enjoying a long-awaited revival). Then, of course, he also created Wildstar for Image.

We managed to catch up to Jerry just before the year-end 2002 holidays at the comic-book shop we both frequent—Flamingo Street in Norwalk, Conn. (the home of the former original Dream Factory), and talked him into chatting with us (to be sure, it didn't take much convincing, as not only is Jerry a very personable guy who loves to chat about the industry in general, and his work in particular, but as we did the entire interview via e-mail, he was only too happy to accommodate us). Thus, without any further adieu, we are pleased to present the words and wisdom of the esteemed Jerry Ordway.

Bob Sodaro: How long have you been in the business?

Jerry Ordway: I got my big break in the summer of 1980, at the DC talent search conducted at the Chicago Comicon. My first pro work was inking a short Carmine Infantino penciled story that saw print in 1981. I followed that with a Trevor Von Eeden short, and a couple of War That Time Forgot stories drawn by Dave Cockrum, and Bob Hall. You remember—dinosaurs in World War II? Anyhow, after that, I was asked to be the inker on All Star Squadron, and went full time into comics in February 1981, leaving the commercial art job behind. Can't say I ever regretted the move, as I've wanted to be a comic artist since childhood.

Bob: When did you make the leap from artist to co-plotter/writer?

Jerry: I was throwing ideas into my penciled work for years, but I really got my first taste of it on Adventures of Superman #426, I believe, which was a Superman on Apokalips three-parter that John Byrne did the beginning and end of. My studio mates at the time, Mike Machlan and Al Vey, both pitched in to help me plot the Adventures part, and then it was sent off to Byrne, who fine-tuned it. Later, I did more, notably when John took over scripting on the Adventures of Superman book. He was very generous to me, sharing both the co-plotting credit, as well as the money. Many writers at that time were more than happy to have the artists share the story burden, but few were willing to share their writing fee like John did. Well, we went along a while, and then when Byrne left his Superman assignments to return to Marvel, Mike Carlin took a chance and hired me to write the book. He worked very patiently with me on the mechanics of scripting, and I was grateful. It seems to have worked out.

Bob: Who were your influences (both comic and non-comic) and why?

Jerry: I was a big John Buscema fan as a kid, most notably his Avengers work. Also Wally Wood, Gil Kane, Kirby, and Neal Adams. Later, I discovered

Alex Raymond, Hal Foster, Roy Crane, and all the greats of comic strips. Around the time I started with DC, Russ Cochran began his EC hardcover sets, and those influenced me greatly as well. Artists never stop looking at the latest hot artists either, for inspiration

Bob: What caused you to think to enter the field of comics?

Jerry: I almost always drew comic stories as a kid, and enjoyed it immensely. I love the mix of drawings and text. My brief time spent in commercial art was educational, but I never warmed to just producing a single picture—I craved the flow of multi-panel comic pages.

Bob: Could you list some of the characters/titles you worked on, and which were your favorites?

Jerry: I have enjoyed my career, thank you. Every page I've produced is like a day in my life. As for truly memorable experiences, I really enjoyed my time on Superman, Power of Shazam, and my brief stint on Avengers for Marvel. I grew up on the Marvels of the '60s and '70s, and still want a shot at that pantheon.

Bob: Over the years you've worked mostly for DC; has that been by accident or by design?

Jerry: I was treated very fairly at DC for the most part, and formed good friendships with many of my collaborators. My work experience at Marvel was great while it lasted, but to my frustration, I was never able to land a monthly assignment there.

Bob: If the '40s are considered the Golden Age, the '60s considered the Silver Age, what Age followed that (the Bronze Age, the Modern Age?). With this new slate of comics coming out, we seemed to have entered a new age, what would you call that?

All Star Squadron #29 © DC Comics

Jerry: I have heard it called the "Image Age," which seems appropriate. When Image came along, it influenced, across the boards, the current generation of comics' creators–just as the "Marvel Age" influenced me.

Bob: Given that we seem to have moved into a new Age of comics what do you think of the current comics? Both new titles and re-imagerining of on-going titles and characters.

Jerry: I like quite a bit that's out there now. I'm not entirely comfortable with the maturing themes and language in many of the mainstream comics, but times change. In the old days, TV, magazines, and comics—they resisted the urge to pander, but now anything goes, and the charge seems to be led by video game producers. I guess that's what still appeals to me about the classic heroes– they stand for something—for the best in human behavior. I like Fantastic Four, JSA, Avengers, and Hulk. Many others I can't think of at the moment.

Bob: Do you feel that Marvel's Ultimate Universe is simply Marvel doing what DC did during the '60s by moving all of the Golden Age characters to Earth 1 and creating Earth 2 new incarnations (or is that the other way around?)

Jerry: Sure. Marvel is where DC was, age-wise when DC did their Crisis. Personally, though, I've never thought the Marvel characters needed rebooting. The world changed more drastically from 1940 'til 1980, which affected the DC heroes more. I like to think we're still living in the legacy of the 1960s that the Marvel heroes sprung from.

Bob: What is the current project on which you're working?

Jerry: I'm drawing a six-issue story arc for Wonder Woman, beginning with issue #189. Walt Simonson is writing, and Craig Russell is inking. Wonder Woman is suffering amnesia, and being pursued by demons. I begged Walt to turn her into a frog or something, but so far he's resisted. At Wildstorm, I'm drawing a three-part Tom Strong storyline, with, of course, Alan Moore writing. It's a sort of homage to the imaginary Superman stories of the 1950s that Alan is so clever at.

Bob: Over the years you've worked with quite a number of creators on various characters/titles; could you name some of your favorite co-creators with whom you've worked?

Jerry: I've learned a lot from all my co-conspirators, but my time on Superman had me brushing shoulders with many whom I call friend. I liked working with Byrne, Dan Jurgens, Gil Kane, Peter Krause and Mike Manley (on Shazam), and Al Gordon (on WildStar). Mike Zeck and I recently did a year's worth of Azrael covers that were great fun. I have been blessed with many great work experiences.

Bob: With whom would you like to work, but haven't yet?

Jerry: I'd love to draw a Grant Morrison superhero story. Neil Gaiman as well. I almost worked with Mike Weiringo once, and would welcome that as well. Gene Colan—I'd love to ink a story of his. As I said, I've have been fortunate to rub elbows with many greats in my 20-plus years in comics.

Bob: Are there any characters/ titles on which you'd like to work?

Jerry: Boy, I was a huge Spider-Man fan, as well as a Daredevil fan, as a kid. I also wouldn't mind another chance drawing Captain America, the Fantastic Four, and the Avengers some day. On a purely fan level, it would be fun to draw the T.H.U.N.D.E.R Agents again. (As noted at the beginning of this interview, Jerry indicated that he had been recently contracted by DC to work on the company's re-launch of the series—Bob)

Bob: What do you think of the recent crop of comic-book movies?

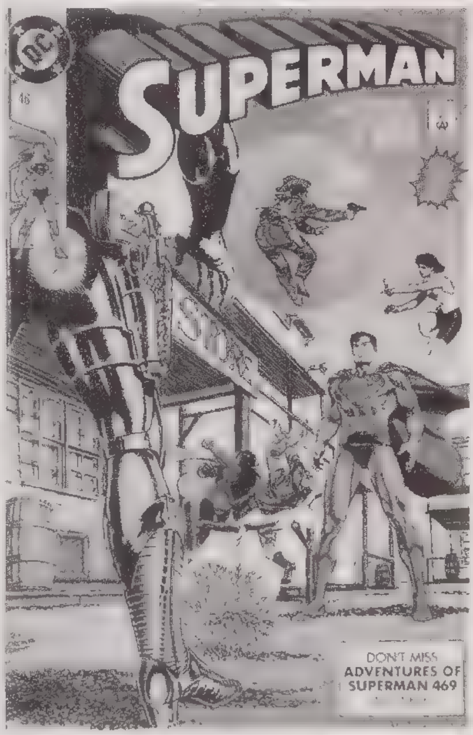
Jerry: I liked X-Men, and Spider-Man. I think the first Superman and Batman movies were great as well. Road to Perdition left me cold, though I wanted to like it. I do think all mentioned were respectful of their source material, and that's key. They all had heart.



Superman (2nd Series) #46 © DC Comics

Bob: What comic-book characters would you like to get the big-screen treatment?

Jerry: I think Shazam could be a great movie, if done the right way. As I watched the recent Mummy films, I came away thinking Brendan Fraser would capture the innocence of Captain Marvel on screen.

Bob: Obviously some of the older comic-book films didn't pan out as well as we (as fans) or as well as Hollywood would have liked. Would you like to comment briefly on some of the older comic-book films (either Silver Screen or TV)?

Jerry: I love Smallville, currently on the WB network, and also the cartoon versions of Justice League, Batman, and Superman. As most comic fans know, most of the comics we love aren't campy, but Hollywood seems bent on adding that element to most of the comic-to-film projects. Back in the '70s, they threw away a great opportunity to do justice to Doc Savage, by camping up the movie. I still remember the opening scene from that movie being good, and then it was downhill the rest of the way.

Bob: While we have obviously had something of a revitalization over the past couple of years, do you feel that comics are a dying form of entertainment?

Jerry: Oh sure they are, along with newspapers and magazines. I still think books have a chance. I would love nothing more than to see them all prosper, but again, this is an age on the edge of a paperless society. Technology brings changes. Nobody makes silent films anymore. With the animation available on the Web, who's going to want a comic panel with still pictures? With the move to the Internet, or just digital, there is no limitation you can have voices as well as text, and the drawing will be more like a cartoon, with movement.

Bob: Do you feel that comic-book movies help bring more readers into the field or not? Why?

Jerry: I think they could bring kids back to the field, but not adults, in any great numbers. Adults I think are happy to pay their way into the movies, and maybe tell their kids that they read Spider-Man, or whatever, as a kid. The big problem with bringing kids into comics is that there aren't many comics suitable, and kids have about a million options to entertain themselves besides a comic book. If you could sell them on the novelty, then you have to really wow them with the content.

Bob: You're married with young children; are they into comics? If so, what kinds of comics/characters do they like?

Jerry: All three of my kids are comic fans, and I honestly think it's because of the amount of work my wife and I put into getting them to enjoy reading. They also have limits on how much TV, computer, and video game time they are allowed. You can't expect a child addicted to any of those entertainments to find time to read if you don't limit them. It's easy to just let the TV or whatever baby-sit these kids, but they'll pop open a book or a comic if you expose them to reading when they're little, and you make time for them to do it. As for favorites, my daughter, 10, likes Astro Boy, Girl Genius, Herobear, Go Girl, Pokémon, various Archies, and some kid-friendly manga. My sons, ages 7 and 4, like the DC cartoon books, as well as Dragonball Z and the new Shonen Jump comics from Viz. Their friends don't read comics, except when they're at our house.

Bob: Do you think that there will still be comic books for their children?

Jerry: It will have morphed into something else, I think. My kids all seem to like to write and draw their own comics, though, so maybe they'll be part of what it becomes next, like the pulps begat comics, back in the 1930s.

CVA GRADING GUIDE

In David Brin's science fiction–fantasy novel, The Practice Effect, things improve with use. You start with a crudely-made tool and keep using it until it becomes a fine instrument. If our world worked that way, you could read your Golden Age comics as often as you liked and they would just get better looking each time. Unfortunately, our world does not work that way, and reading your comics (along with just about everything else) causes comics to deteriorate.

Even if you could protect your comics from external light, heat, cold, moisture, pressure, and everything else, you couldn't protect them from their own paper. Most comic books were printed on pulp paper, which has a high acid content. This means that the paper slowly turns brittle with age, no matter what you do to it, short of special museum-style preservation.

Very old, well-preserved comics are coveted collector's items. In most cases, people did not save their comic books for future generations. They read them and discarded them. Comic books were considered harmless ephemera for children. When these children outgrew their comics, their parents often threw them away. If everybody kept all of their comics, comics would not be valuable because everybody would have them scattered about the house!

The value of any comic depends on scarcity, popularity, and condition. Scarcity increases with age and popularity depends on the whim of the public — only condition automatically decreases with age. Newer comics are generally available in near-mint condition, so newer comics in lesser condition have little collector potential. However, older comics are scarce, so they are still collectible in less than near-mint condition, but the value is obviously less. This is a basic tenet of all collectibles. A car is more valuable with its original paint. A baseball card is more valuable if it has not been marred by bicycle spokes. Coke bottles, stamps, coins, and toys in good condition are all more valuable than their abused counterparts. Comic books are no exception.

New comic book collectors should learn how to assess the prospective value of a comic in order to protect themselves from being fleeced by unscrupulous dealers or hucksters. Yet, a majority of dealers, especially store owners, can be considered reliable judges of comic grade. Because comic retail may be their primary source of income, certain dealers are particularly adept at noticing comic book imperfections, especially in issues they intend to purchase. As such, hobbyists and collectors must understand that dealers need to make a minimum profit on their investments. Buying collectible comics entails certain risks. Therefore, dealers must scrutinize a comic to determine if the particular book will stand a chance of resale. Well-preserved comics are invariably more desirable to dealers because they are more desirable to collectors.

There are eight standard comic grades: mint, near mint, very fine, fine, very good, good, fair, and poor. Clearly, these eight grades could be split into even finer categories when haggling over an exceptionally rare or coveted Golden Age comic. In most cases, however, comic books can be evaluated using these eight standard grades. The values listed in Comics Values Annual are all for comics in "Near Mint" condition. The grading/price chart given at the back of this book should be used to adjust this price for comics in different grades.

Mint

Finding new comics in true mint condition can be difficult. Finding old comics in mint condition is almost impossible. Mint condition comics usually fetch prices higher than price guide listings. Mint comics can sell for 120% or more of Comics Values Annual listed prices. The reason for this is the strict criteria reserved for mint comics.

Mint comics are perfect comics and allow no room for imperfections. Pages and covers must be free of discoloration, wear, and wrinkles. A mint comic is one that looks like it just rolled off the press. Staples and spine must meet perfectly without cover "rollover." The cover must be crisp, bright, and trimmed perfectly. The staples must not be rusted and the cover should not have any visible creases.

The interior pages of a mint comic are equally crisp and new. A mint comic must not show any signs of age or decay. Because of the paper stock used on many older comics, acid and oxygen cause interior pages to yellow and flake. It is much harder to find pre-1970 mint comics because of inferior storage techniques and materials. In the early days of collecting, few people anticipated that the very boxes and bags in which they stored their comics were contributing to decay. Acid from bags, backing boards, and boxes ate away at many comics.

Near Mint

A near mint comic and a mint comic are close siblings, with their differences slight, even to an experienced eye. Most of the new comics on the shelf of the local comic shop are in near mint condition. These are comics that have been handled gingerly to preserve the original luster of the book.

Near mint comics are bright, clean copies with no major or minor defects. Slight stress lines near the staples and perhaps a very minor printing defect are permissible. Corners must still be sharp and devoid of creases. Interior pages of newsprint stock should show almost no discernible yellowing. Near mint comics usually trade for 100% of the suggested Comics Values Annual listed prices.

Very Fine

A very fine comic is one that is routinely found on the shelves and back issue bins of most good direct market comic shops. This grade comic has few defects, none of them major. Stress around the staples of a very fine comic are visible but not yet radical enough to create wrinkles. Both the cover and interior pages should still be crisp and sharp, devoid of flaking and creases. Interior pages may be slightly yellowed from age.

Most high-quality older comics graded as very fine can obtain 80-90% of Comics Values Annual listed prices. Newer comics graded as very fine get about 70-85% because many near mint copies probably exist. Despite that, very fine comics are desirable for most collectors.

Fine

Fine comics are often issues that may have been stored carefully under a bed or on a shelf by a meticulous collector. This grade of comic is also very desirable because it shows little wear and retains much of its original sharpness. The cover may be slightly off center from rollover. The cover retains less of its original gloss and may even possess a chip or wrinkle. The corners should be sharp but may also have a slight crease. Yellowing begins to creep into the interior pages of a comic graded as fine.

Fine comics are respectable additions to collections and sell for about 40-60% of the listed prices.

Very Good

A very good comic may have been an issue passed around or read frequently. This grade is the common condition of older books. Its cover will probably have lost some luster and may have two or three creases around the staples or edges. The corners of the book may begin to show the beginnings of minor rounding and chipping, but it is by no means a damaged or defaced comic. Comics in very good condition sell for about 30-40% of Comics Values Annual listed prices.

Good

A good comic is one that has been well read and is beginning to show its age. Although both front and back covers are still attached, a good grade comic may have a number of serious wrinkles and chips. The corners and edges of this grade comic may show clear signs of rounding and flaking. There should be no major tears in a good comic nor should any pages be clipped out or missing. Interior pages may be fairly yellowed and brittle. Good comics sell for about 15-25% of the Comics Values Annual listed prices.

Fair

A fair comic is one that has definitely seen better days and has considerably limited resale value for most collectors. This comic may be soiled and damaged on the cover and interior. Fair comics should be completely intact and may only be useful as a comic to lend to friends. Fair comics sell for about 10-20% of the Comics Values Annual listed prices.

Poor

Comics in poor condition are generally unsuitable for collecting or reading because they range from damaged to unrecognizable. Poor comics may have been water damaged, attacked by a small child, or worse, perhaps, gnawed on by the family pet! Interior and exterior pages may be cut apart or missing entirely. A poor comic sells for about 5-15% of the Comics Values Annual listed price.

Sniffing Out Grades

Despite everything that is mentioned about comic grading, the process remains relative to the situation. A comic that seems to be in very good condition may actually be a restored copy. A restored copy is generally considered to be in between the grade it was previous to restoration and the grade it has become. Many collectors avoid restored comics entirely.

Each collector builds his collection around what he believes is important. Some want every issue of a particular series or company. Others want every issue of a favorite artist or writer. Because of this, many collectors will purchase lower-grade comics to fill out a series or to try out a new series. Mint and near mint comics are usually much more desirable to hard-core collectors. Hobbyists and readers may find the effort and cost of collecting only high-grade comics financially prohibitive.

Getting artists or writers to autograph comics has also become a source of major dispute. Some collectors enjoy signed comics and others consider those very comics defaced! The current trends indicate that most collectors do enjoy signed comics. A signature does not usually change the grade of the comic.

As mentioned, comic grading is a subjective process that must be agreed upon by the buyer and seller. Buyers will often be quick to note minor defects in order to negotiate a better price. Sellers are sometimes selectively blind to their comic's defects. Comics Values Annual 2003 provides this grading guide as a protection for both parties.

CVA GRADING GUIDE

Grading comics is an objective art. This grading guide outlines the many conditions you should look for when purchasing comics, from the highest grade and top condition to the lowest collectible grade and condition. Your own comics will fall into one of these categories. A more complete description and our comments on comics grades can be found inside. We would like to point out, however, that no reader or advertiser is required to follow this or any other standard. All prices in Comics Values Annual are for comics in Near Mint condition. Happy collecting!

Mint: Perfect, pristine, devoid of any trace of wear or printing or handling flaws. Covers must be fully lustrous with sharply pointed corners. No color fading. Must be well centered. Many "rack" comics are not "Mint" even when new.

Near Mint: Almost perfect with virtually no wear. No significant printing flaws. Covers must be essentially lustrous with sharp corners. Spine is a tight as new. In older comics, minimal color fading is acceptable, as is slight aging of the paper. Most price guides, including CVA, quote prices in this grade.

Very Fine: Well preserved, still pleasing in appearance. Small signs of wear, most particularly around the staples. Most luster is readily visible. Corners may no longer be sharp, but are not rounded. Typical of a comic read only a few times and then properly stored.

Fine: Clean, presentable, with noticeable signs of wear. Some white may show through enamel around staples, and moderate rounding of corners. No tape or writing damage. Book still lies flat.

Very Good: A well worn reading copy with some minor damage such as creasing, small tears or cover flaking. Some discoloration may be evident, with obvious wear around the staples. Little luster remains, and some rolling of the spine may be seen when comic is laid flat on the table.

Good: A fully intact comic with very heavy wear. Tears, cover creases and flaking, and rolled spine will all be evident. No tape repairs present. Only very scarce or valuable issues are collected in this state.

The adjoining price table shows the prices for the other collectible grades which correspond to any "near mint" price given in this book.
